This woodblock print depicts a busy theatrical scene, likely a kabuki performance. The composition is dense with figures in traditional Japanese clothing. In the upper right, a group of figures stands, some holding fans. The center and lower portions of the image are filled with more figures, some seated and others in dynamic, expressive poses. The background is a dense thicket of stylized bamboo or reeds. The entire scene is enclosed within a thick black rectangular border. Japanese text is integrated into the image: a horizontal line of text at the top, vertical text on the left side, and additional vertical text at the bottom right.
