

近世 22.7-06-043

The image shows a vertical column of Chinese calligraphy in cursive script (caoshu). The characters are fluid and expressive, written in black ink on a light background. The text is arranged in two rows per character, with the first row on the right and the second row on the left. The characters appear to be a continuous, flowing script, possibly a signature or a specific inscription.

板元 木きや山本室主良一正