The image shows a horizontal scroll painting (kōhō) depicting a landscape with a large, gnarled tree in the center-left, a winding path leading towards a small pavilion or building in the background, and a body of water on the right. The style is characteristic of Yamashiro School (Yamashiro-ha) landscape painting. To the left of the painting, there is a vertical column of cursive script (caoshu) calligraphy. On the far right, there is a large, prominent square seal impression.

The image shows a horizontal scroll painting (kōhō) depicting a landscape with a winding river, dense foliage, and a small bridge. A large, square seal is placed on the right side of the composition. The overall style is characteristic of Yamato-e genre.
