

The image shows a vertical column of Chinese calligraphy in cursive script (caoshu). The characters are bold and fluid, written in black ink on a light background. The text consists of ten lines of characters, likely a poem or a phrase repeated multiple times. The characters are arranged in two columns: the left column contains the first five lines, and the right column contains the next five lines. The characters are written in a dynamic, expressive style, with varying line thicknesses and ink saturation.

A vertical column of Chinese calligraphy in black ink on a light background. The characters are written in a bold, cursive style. From top to bottom, the characters read: 大席 (Large Cloth), 席上 (On the Large Cloth), 一席 (One Large Cloth), and 大席 (Large Cloth). To the left of the main text, there is a vertical column of characters: 痘子 (Pox子), 大席 (Large Cloth), 四四 (Four Four), and 造 (Create).