The International Wittgenstein Workshop at Tokyo

We, The University of Tokyo, will hold an international workshop on Wittgenstein’s philosophy in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the publication of Saul Kripke’s influential book on the paradox of rule-following. Everyone is welcome.

(organised by The University of Tokyo, under the joint auspices of the Philosophy of Science Society, Japan)

Other Related Events
Professor Paul Horwich: A Series of Lectures
Venue: Professors’ Meeting Room of the Faculty of Letters in Hongo Campus
22nd May 2007 from 5:00 p.m.  “What is Truth?”
29th May 2007 from 5:00 p.m.  “Kripke’s Paradox of Meaning”

Date: 2nd June 2007  (Saturday), from 1:00 p.m.
Venue: Lecture Hall 1 of the Faculty of Letters, The University of Tokyo, in Hongo Campus
1st session
Speaker: Akio Kikai (Tsukuba University)
“On Wittgenstein’s Concept of ‘Following a Rule’ and Its Implication for the Philosophy of Mathematics”
Commentator: Brendan Wilson (The University of Tokyo)
Chair: Yukihiro Nobuhara (The University of Tokyo)

2nd session
Speaker: Paul Boghossian (New York University)
“Blind Rule-Following”
Commentator: Takashi Iida (Keio University)
Chair: Ann Garry (California State University LA, The University of Tokyo)

3rd session
Speaker: Paul Horwich (New York University)
“Meaning as Use”
Commentator: Masaki Ichinose (The University of Tokyo)
Chair: Tomoyuki Yamada (Hokkaido University)

General Moderator: Nobuharu Tanji (Tokyo Metropolitan University)
Translator (when necessary): Hide Ishiguro (The University of London)

Reception: At Sanjo Conference Hall from 7:00 p.m. (3,000 yen)