eds. SHIMADA Shizuo and Sharifa TOSHEVA, Tokyo, 2010

This publication is a critical edition of the text of Şadr al-Dīn ‘Aynī’s Bukhārā inqilābīning ta’rīkhī (History of the Bukharan Revolution) based on the original manuscripts held in Institute of Oriental Studies, Academy of Sciences of Uzbekistan. ‘Aynī (1878 -1954) is well-known as the leading figure of Soviet Tajik literature, but before the Soviet Revolution he was an active participant in the Muslim reform movement in Emirate of Bukhara. And this work of his, written in Uzbek in 1921, is one of the most important materials for the history of the reform movement among Muslim intellectuals or Jadids in Bukhara at the beginning of the 20th century and the Bukharan revolution of September 1920.

As described in detail in the introduction of this book, although this important work was published several times in the Soviet period, all of them were incomplete edition censored by the Soviet authorities with the omissions and changes from the original text. In this time, as the result of the cooperative studies between Japanese and Uzbek researchers, the complete edition of the original text was published for the first time. This book consists of the introduction in three languages (Uzbek, Japanese, Russian), pictures of the original manuscript and text in the Arabic script.
